Energy-efficient display shaves up to 60 per cent off bills

SOUTH West homebuyers looking to purchase an energy-efficient home with all the modern conveniences and luxuries are encouraged to look at a new home in Providence.

Summit Home's newest display – The Envy – recently opened and offers an energy rating of 8.3 stars.

Summit Homes general manager David Hunt said the energy rating would allow homebuyers to save up to 60 per cent off their heating and cooling costs. The home features three separate living areas, including the home theatre, games room and the main open-plan living and dining area which features extensive use of glass and raked ceilings.

The home's resort-style master suite features a luxurious ensuite with walk-in shower recess, double vanities, access to a private courtyard and an oversized walk-in wardrobe.

The alfresco, with its 31-course recessed ceiling, offers a big 35sqm of outdoor living with three separate entries to the kitchen, games and central living area.

As displayed, The Envy offers 278sqm of living area (including the alfresco) with a total area of 329sqm.

It has been designed to fit on lots 17m wide.
