Summit to smile about

SUMMIT South West officially moved into Busselton last week, opening a new office on Kent Street.

General manager David Hunt said the move had been planned for some time and was a good way to demonstrate that customers remained the number one priority.

"The South Western corridor of WA is experiencing high rates of demographic and economic growth and so it was a strategic decision for us to establish a strong presence in Busselton," Mr Hunt said.

Summit South West has been based in Bunbury for two decades, and has leased its Busselton office space for five years with options available to extend thereafter.

The launch of the new branch was celebrated by staff and invited guests at a sundowner last Thursday evening.
